OFFICE OF

INSURANCE COMMISSIONER

To Members of the Washington State Legislature

It is a pleasure to present to you the Eighty-ninth Annual Report of the Washington State Insurance Commissioner. This document covers official transactions and significant developments in the business of insurance as required by RCW 48.02.170.

The bulk of the activities and transactions of the state Insurance Commissioner's Office for 1982 are outlined in the tables, and recapitulations of pages 1 through 239.

The activities of the Fire Marshal Division are outlined in narrative form on pages 8 through 20.

This report is compiled from the computerized data base and record keeping system provided through the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) office. Insurance company data is for the period from January 1, 1982 through December 31, 1982.

Sincerely,

Dick Marquardt

Annual Report of the Office of Insurance Commissioner

Covering Events and Activities From

January 1, 1982 through December 31, 1982

This report is being published under RCW 48.02.170. As that law requires, the material appearing in the statistical tables of Section II is taken from the annual statements which the insurers themselves have filed with this Office and with the NAIC. Thus, the publication of these tables by this Office should not be construed as a confirmation by this Office of the accuracy of any given figure.

WA-FIRS PROGRAM

The Washington State Fire Incident Reporting System (WA-FIRS) is both a statewide reporting system and a member of the National Fire Incident Reporting System (NFIRS). The primary responsibility of the WA-FIRS system is the gathering of statistical information on fires that have occurred within the state.

This program began in 1970, pursuant to RCW 48.48.065, with the selection of 46 fire departments to participate in a pilot program. These departments were located throughout the state, representing both urban and rural, paid and volunteer fire departments.

Since that time, the program has expanded to include over 200 participating fire departments. These departments provide fire protection services to an estimated 90% of the state's population.

With the completion of 1982, the WA-FIRS program's data base contained over two full years of data. During 1982, over 77,000 reports were processed. Of these reports, 25,051 were of actual fire situations. Those fire situations resulted in approximately 725 injuries and 69 fatalities to both civilians and firefighters, with an estimated property damage loss of over $75.9 million.

The information collected by the WA-FIRS program is accomplished through completed forms that have been coded using the NFPA 1976 901 codes. These forms are collected from each individual fire department with the exception of departments who submit their data on magnetic tape.

After processing, information is returned to each fire department and county fire marshal on computer-generated feedback reports. The information is also forwarded to the National Data Center where it is analyzed along with data submitted by other reporting states to determine the scope and extent of the national fire problem. The data is also analyzed to help determine if any exact problem areas are present which can be either eliminated or at least reduced through changes in building construction, manufacturing methods or consumer use.

The collected information is used not only by the participating fire departments within the state, but also by such organizations as insurance companies, the news media and consumer education groups.

FIRE INVESTIGATION DIVISION

(1) Fire/Arson/Fraud Investigation

The primary responsibility of the Fire Investigation Division is the investigation of arson. The law requires all fires of known or suspected criminal origin and those in which arson cannot be eliminated as a potential cause to be promptly reported to the state fire marshal, and the state fire marshal is required to provide assistance in the investigation of those reported when so requested. The fire investigation division started in 1982 with one unfilled position on its staff, lost an additional investigator through the state's Reduction-in-Force budget-cutting program in August, and another in September through reassignment to other duties. This reduction, from seven to four full-time investigators, at a time when arson was increasing and the demands for assistance from local agencies increasing at an even greater rate, resulted in a very unsatisfactory record of meeting the legal mandates of the office in this area.

The year 1982 should have been the year in which the fire investigation function finally reached its potential. The year culminated the activities of the Senate Arson Committee and saw the last of the Committee proposals put into law. The police powers, long a handicap to efficient and effective fire investigation, were implemented early in the year with the completion of the law enforcement training mandated by law. The recent additional amendments to the Arson Reporting Immunity Act were made more meaningful by passage of the Arson Fraud Reduction bill aimed at combatting the slum landlord and his get-rich-quick schemes at the expense of the public and in total disregard for human life. However, this bill was never implemented, nor were the other recent anti-arson laws used to their potential due to the staff reductions and budget limitations.

In 1982, this division also saw a further decline in available manhours devoted to arson investigation with passage of a fireworks bill, which extended the police powers of the office to this area as well. Since the members of the Fire Investigation Division are the only ones within the agency authorized to exercise police powers, they fell heir to the enforcement activities under the fireworks law. These activities are covered elsewhere in this report and are mentioned here only to show the detrimental effect it had on arson investigation.

The arson/fraud investigation program, the primary object of the 1979 Arson Reporting Immunity Act and its 1980 and 1981 amendments, was drastically reduced due to lack of staff and the resources to fully track the methodical burning of insured property for the express purpose of defrauding the insurance companies. Reports were received from all insurers on fire loss claims in excess of $1,000, but follow up could not be done. Also, the reports could only be manually cross-indexed and filed for future use due to lack of an automated input and retrieval system. Until proper attention is given this program, the magnitude of the arson/fraud problem cannot be properly identified, let alone combatted. With 25¢ of every insurance dollar going to enrich the profit-motivated arsonist, this is an area that should be expanded rather than reduced.

The Uniform Crime Report lists 1,704 cases of arson, amounting to over $35 million in property losses, reported to local law enforcement for follow up by fire departments. These are only the fires in which arson was detected. Fire department reports list 2,766 additional fires in which the cause was not determined. If an accidental cause was not obvious, it is logical that a large percentage of these fires were intentionally caused. The dollar loss from these undetermined fires was likewise not determined, but conservatively would probably at least equal that from arson.

(2) Fireworks Regulation

The state fireworks law, unchanged since its initial adoption in 1961, was long overdue for revision. Attempts by the state fire marshal in the preceding four legislative sessions were unsuccessful, due to apathy on the part of most legislators. Finally, in 1982, the law was changed, but only with compromises to secure endorsement by the fireworks industry. One of these was a liberalization on the variety of items available for public purchase and use. Audible devices (firecrackers) and aerial devices, prohibited under the old law but readily available from mail-order houses or retailers on Indian reservations, were legalized. The result of this change could not be fully predicted. While there was a modest increase in the number of fireworks-caused injuries and fires, they were, in no way, proportional to the increase in complaints due to noise. Organized opposition to fireworks, especially firecrackers, came principally from two sources--pet owners and residents of metropolitan areas. The public quickly became polarized on the subject, about equally divided in number, between the pro-fireworks and anti-fireworks issue, but with the anti-fireworks group by far the most vocal. Legislators also became quickly educated and lined up with one side or the other.

A substantial increase in the legitimate fireworks business, and the licensing of the various fireworks activities by the office, was experienced. "Liberalizing" the fireworks law diverted much of the former illegal fireworks trafficking into the legal market. The number of licensed wholesalers, the only sources through which retailers can legally obtain their fireworks for resale, increased from four the previous year to ten during 1982. While the number of retail licenses remained fairly constant, the volume of business done by each increased. All were able to operate within the law and make a substantial profit without resorting to "under the counter" sales, a common practice in the past. Very few problems were experienced by the office during the fireworks season in licensing and regulating retail licensees, but the office was inundated with complaints by the public about the noise and general lawlessness of the purchasers.

Fireworks seizures, an increasing problem in the past, declined in volume but increased in number. Where previously seizures were primarily large quantities taken from bootlegging entrepreneurs, the number of these diminished and an increase experienced in smaller quantities being seized from individual purchasers, most of which were illegal items obtained from mail-order or Indian reservation sources. During the year, approximately 10,000 pounds were seized from approximately 100 individuals. The role of the state fire marshal was principally taking custody of the fireworks seized by local police agencies, providing safe storage until all charges had been satisfied, and eventual destruction.

The seasonal nature of fireworks precludes vigorous enforcement. The legal fireworks season encompasses an eight-day period each year. It is not possible to maintain a staff adequate to police the fireworks season during this period. The regular year-round activities of the office, i.e., arson investigation, cannot be suspended during this period. Fireworks endorsement is an added responsibility, rather than one to which resources can be diverted seasonally. Reliance on cooperation and assistance from local officials is a must. Fireworks trafficking is very profitable. Even the most straightforward of those engaged in the business will take advantage of any perceived weaknesses or gaps in enforcement measures for their own enrichment. Fireworks are, and will continue to be, a thorny, divided issue, defying total regulatory control.

RESIDENTIAL INSPECTION DIVISION

During calendar year 1982, the Residential Inspection Division provided timely fire/life safety inspection services for the Department of Social and Health Services, to include inspections of transient lodging establishments and a broad range of child-care agencies.

A slight increase in new inspections occurred during the reporting period, primarily due to the reduced number of reinspections necessary to bring about full compliance with code requirements, and the increased use of written statements from licensees' certifying that routine discrepancies had been completed.

The impact of severe budget cuts resulted in the loss of one field inspector during October 1982. Although the loss of the inspector created a need to adjust inspection workloads, it has not terminally reduced the capability of meeting the statutory inspection requirements of the Residential Inspection Division.

The following charts provide information relating to the types of facilities subject to the residential inspection program and a detailed recap of fire/life safety inspections conducted throughout Calendar Year 1982.

HEALTH CARE FACILITIES FIRE PROTECTION DIVISION

It is the responsibility of the state fire marshal to adopt and enforce recognized standards for protection of life against fire and fire hazards in hospitals, nursing homes, boarding homes for the aged, private establishments (psychiatric hospitals, alcoholic treatment facilities), childbirth centers, and residential treatment facilities for psychiatrically-impaired children and youth.

State fire marshal approval of these facilities is a condition of annual licensing by the Department of Social and Health Services. Annual approval is also required for eligibility to participate in federally sponsored Medicare and Medicaid programs.

In addition to enforcement of fire protection regulations, deputy state fire marshals counsel and advise on matters of fire protection. They also conduct educational and fire and life safety training for staff personnel in the facilities as time and funding permit.

During the year the staff and program continued to show progress as follows:

- Frequent staff meetings were held to compare and resolve fire problems.

- Personnel were consulted for input in developing new inspection methods and new regulations.

- Personnel were consulted to input in developing new inspection methods and new regulations.

- Greater emphasis continues on thoroughness of inspections and stricter enforcement, tempered with judgment and public education.

- Special inspections were conducted during evening hours to evaluate a facility's readiness to react to a fire emergency when staff capability is reduced.

- Close liaison continues with all levels of state and federal governmental agencies involved.

The fire marshal's office (under RCW 70.41, 18.51, 18.20 and 71.12) must make certain that all hospitals, nursing homes, boarding homes and private establishments service the physically and mentally handicapped, and individuals suffering from drug or alcohol-related conditions, meet minimum fire and life safety standards. To achieve this objective, the division, under contract with the Department of Social and Health Services, conducts annual life safety code surveys in approximately 800 licensed facilities throughout the state. Facilities meeting the established life safety codes and inspection approval are eligible for licensing and may also participate in federally sponsored Medicare and Medicaid programs.

This division continues to operate without an increase in personnel, but with a continually growing number of facilities under its responsibility. New standards for fire protection were adopted for "hospice care centers" (WAC 212-26). This is a new licensing category of the Department of Social and Health Services.

Special regulations were also established for intermediate care facilities for the mentally retarded under the Department of Social and Health Services so that they could participate in the Medicare program.

On December 20, 1982, a fire of serious consequence occurred in a large hospital in this state. There were no injuries or loss of life. Smoke spread rapidly to all seven floors and resulted in evacuation of all 150 patients in the hospital at the time. This is a 220-bed hospital. The fire occurred at 4:55 a.m. The area of origin had no automatic sprinklers or smoke detection. Both would be required by present day codes.

A comprehensive fire investigation report points out the many failures and omissions that could have had tragic results. The monetary loss is placed at $2.6 million. Many persons could have been killed or injured as a result of that well used term "the grandfather clause." The cause of the fire was determined to be arson.

Upon being advised of the lack of fire protection as evidenced here and in other similar health care facilities, the state fire marshal appointed a special select advisory committee to look into the retroactive application of the "state of the art" fire regulations for hospitals and nursing homes.

STATE FIRE MARSHAL PLAN REVIEW. The plan review section of this division exists through interagency agreement with the Department of Social and Health Services. It includes the review of plans for new and remodeled hospitals, nursing homes, boarding homes for the aged, alcoholic treatment facilities, hospice care centers, residential treatment facilities for psychiatrically-impaired children and youths, childbirth centers and private establishments. Plans are reviewed for all features of fire protection.

Funding cuts by the Department of Social and Health Services have resulted in the elimination of one of the two deputy fire marshals assigned to this section. The construction inspection function under the same program has also been eliminated. The adverse impact of these reductions have been evident in the field.

The deputy state fire marshal assigned to this important function has specialized training and experience. He confers with owners, administrators, architects, and engineers in predesign and preconstruction conferences and as needed throughout the life of the project. He operates under the general supervision of the state fire marshal, but receives his assignments from the Department of Social and Health Services. These assignments are then closely coordinated with the other staff consultants in the architectural, engineering, and electrical disciplines. Plans must be approved prior to construction.

The deputies assigned to the health care facilities inspections continue to monitor and approve installation of new automatic extinguishing systems, fire alarm and detection systems. All other fire protection features of new construction must wait to be inspected and approved at the next annual inspection of the facility due to lack of manpower.

SPECIAL PLAN REVIEW FUNCTION. Under a contract between the State Jail Commission and the state fire marshal, the health care facilities fire protection division provides plan reviews and consultation for a series of new county and city jail construction projects.

SUMMARY:

The close of calendar year 1982 saw approximately 90% of the state's population covered by uniform fire reports (200 participating departments). This uniform fire incident reporting system continued to be utilized by a number of diverse organizations including, but not limited to, fire departments, insurance associations, consumer education groups, news media, and the Washington State Legislature. In addition, 1982 gave us the second full year of data, with an ultimate goal of 95% of the state's population reporting by 1985.

Notwithstanding the fine work of the Senate Oversight Committee on Arson, and completion of its legislative package, 1982 was not a good year for fire investigation in the state fire marshal's office. Three of the seven existing full-time investigators were either reassigned, position remained unfilled, or RIF'd as a result of the state's reduction in force program. As arson was on the increase and continues to be so, the timing could not have been worse.

Uniform crime report for 1982 listed 1704 cases of arson, accounting for over $35,000,000 in property loss which was reported to local law enforcement agencies. In addition, fire departments reported 2,766 additional fires in which the cause was not determined. It is logical to assume that a large percentage of these fires were intentionally caused.

The year 1982 saw the passage of the first complete rewrite of the 1961 fireworks law. In an attempt to bring the state's fireworks law into compliance with many federal preemptive standards, a compromise was made in the type of fireworkds offered for sale. The ensuing hue and cry from metropolitan residents, pet owners, the aged and infirmed quickly questioned the wisdom of such a decision. As a result, Insurance Commissioner/State Fire Marshal, Dick Marquardt, announced a program approximately 10 days after the July 4, 1982, to attempt to return the fireworks offered for sale to those commonly referred to as "safe and sane." The bill, while it did a number of positive administrative steps, such as police powers for enforcement purposes, caused a rapid increase in the use of explosive noise makers, commonly referred to as firecrackers. Indian reservation sales for the year 1982 substantially decreased. The number of retail stands increased, and the charitable-nonprofit group who make up a major portion of the retail legal sales prospered.

The Legislative Session to begin in January 1983, promises to have a fiercely debated issue on what should be done to the new fireworks law.

The Residential Inspection team (hotel, motel and day care) was also not unaffected by the budget cuts and suffered the loss of one deputy. Through skillful management and a new inspection process for relatively minor infractions of the state fire codes, this loss was absorbed.

In the area of health care facilities fire protection, the state suffered a potentially disastrous fire in an Everett Hospital of which damage incurred in the excess of $2.6 million. Fortunately, no injury or life loss occurred.

A special select advisory committee was appointed to examine the historic granting of "the Grandfather Clause" as it pertains to medical facilities. The year 1983 promises to be a time for review and analysis as to the future of "Grandfather Clauses" in medical facilities. This clause was not used at all in the residential inspection division programs, thereby insuring a minimum of uniform fire safety in all hotels and motels throughout the state.

The year 1982 also saw the elimination of the program manager for the WA-FIRS program, at a time when the expansion of the program was coming into its own. In three years, over 90% of the state's population was covered by reports. A serious question was beginning to be formulated as to the future of WA-FIRS where, by its very success, the capability to process the incoming data in a timely and meaningful fashion, was of major concern.

In final summary, 1982 was without a doubt, a most devastating year for the day-to-day operations for the state fire marshal's office. Carefully developed programs based on manpower and budgetary projections had to be severely altered to reflect the downturn in the state's economy. The protection of the citizens of the state of Washington, with particular reference to arson investigation and the ability to develop timely fire prevention strategy as a result of fire incident reporting, was severely compromised. Inspection divisions, through good management, were able to more readily adapt to the budget reductions; however, they too were affected. The challenge for 1983, simply stated, was basically how to do more with less.

To Members of the Washington State Legislature

It is a pleasure to present the Ninetieth Annual Report of the Washington State Insurance Commissioner. This document covers official transactions and significant developments in the business of insurance as required by RCW 48.02.170.

The bulk of the activities and transactions overseen by the state Insurance Commissioner's Office for 1983 are outlined in the tables, and recapitulations on pages 1 through 158.

The activities of the Fire Marshal Division are outlined in narrative form on pages 10 through 24.

This report is compiled from a computerized data base and record keeping system provided through the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) office. Insurance company data is for the period from January 1, 1983 through December 31, 1983.

Sincerely,

Dick Marquardt

1983 ANNUAL REPORT
ANNUAL REPORT - January 1, 1983 to December 31, 1983

THE WASHINGTON STATE FIRE INCIDENT REPORTING SYSTEM (WA-FIRS)

The Washington State Fire Incident Reporting System was launched in 1979. It was a pilot program with 46 participating fire departments, rural, urban, paid and volunteer, a cross-section of the fire protection effort in Washington in general. It was designed to gather statistical information about fires in Washington and to interface with the National Fire Incident Reporting System.

Since its beginning in 1979, the WA-FIRS program has grown to include over 250 fire departments. These departments provide fire protection for roughly 90 percent of Washington's residents.

Participating departments have submitted more than 75,000 reports for processing. Twenty-three thousand eight hundred thirty-six of these reports were on fires causing approximately $65,999,000 in property damage, 40 deaths and 678 injuries. The information has also been used to spot trends, problem areas, arson patterns and other clues to help firefighters do their jobs better.

After processing, the fire report information is returned to each participating department and to county fire marshals. The information is also sent to the National Fire Data Center where it is analyzed along with similar reports from other states. The analysis helps firefighters determine if problems exist in their areas. Sometimes problems with building construction or manufacturing methods or consumer's use of a product can be uncovered with this type of review.

In 1983 the Fire Marshal's Office, in coordination with t[illegible] Fire Chief's Association, began development of a softwa[illegible] t lets individual fire departments enter fire incident [illegible]y into microcomputers. This system was completed and [illegible] early in 1984. Washington was one of the first states i[illegible]e [illegible]ry to develop such a system.

FIRE INVESTIGATION DIVISION

(1) General

The Fire Investigation Division investigates criminally-caused fires, fires in which evidence of fraud or other criminal activities are indicated, and enforces the State Fireworks Law. In addition, our field offices serve as contracts between the State Fire Marshal's Office and the public on a wide variety of fire-related subjects. However, with the reduction from 5 to 2 field offices and the reduction in personnel (approx. 50 percent), productivity suffered. The Division operated throughout calendar year 1983 at this reduced level.

(2) Fire/Arson/Fraud Investigation

Arson trends in Washington reflect those nationwide; i.e. a slight reduction in the number of fires but an increase in the total dollar loss. Police department statistics, as reported to the state/national Uniform Crime Reporting system, showed an average dollar loss of $18,000 per arson for structural fires and $2,400 for vehicle fires. The arrest rate is approximately 25 percent, better than it has been in previous years, but three out of four arsonists still get away. Fire department statistics, as reflected in the state/national Uniform Fire Reporting system, continue to show a disparity in what the fire service determines is arson and what is reported to and investigated by law enforcement agencies.

1983 saw arson classified as a "Part 1" crime under the Uniform Crime Reporting system for the first time. Arson has finally been recognized by the law enforcement community as the major crime that it is, and more detailed statistics and comparisons with other major crimes will now be possible. This should bring about a more successful arrest record, as increased involvement by law enforcement becomes a reality.

Another development which will result in a more aggressive role by law enforcement in arson investigation is a recent U. S. Supreme Court ruling on the need for search warrants for fire and arson investigations. Under Washington State law, only police officers may make affidavit for or execute search warrants. It was partly in anticipation of these rulings that the state legislature granted police powers to the Investigation Division. So while the decision did not hamper the operations of the State Fire Marshal, it did have an impact on fire department operations and forced an earlier and more aggressive role by law enforcement in fire and arson investigation.

The Division has seen an increase in requests for its services from law enforcement agencies.

The four full-time investigators in the Division obviously could not investigate the approximately 5,000 criminal, suspicious or undetermined fires occurring during 1983. An increased percentage of their time was therefore spent coordinating state-wide efforts and encouraging closer cooperation between local fire and police departments. A considerable amount of time was also spent supporting and assisting in training programs. With the decline in the number of public investigators available, the insurance industry has had to turn to private investigators to determine the facts associated with fire losses and get these facts funneled into the proper channels for use in civil or criminal actions. The Arson Reporting Immunity Act makes possible the exchange of arson information between the public and private investigators, but to be truly meaningful the information must be accurate and reliable. By helping train private investigators we feel we helped ourselves.

1983 was a "hold the line" year. No further reductions in the Division were made. A total of 390 fires were investigated. Some involved a total investigation and participation from the fire site to the courtroom. Some were limited to specific tasks in support of local efforts.

(3) Fireworks Enforcement

The 1982 changes in the State Fireworks Law created a storm of controversy. An attempt to change the law back to something closer to the old "Safe and Sane" law during the 1983 Legislative Session failed. 1983 saw the 1982 changes in effect for the second season. The final administrative rules, new forms, procedures, etc.; lacking during the 1982 season, were in place prior to the 1983 season. The only problem experienced was a substantial increase in licensing and general fireworks activity without adequate staff to handle the volume. Again, as in 1982, no great increases in fireworks-related fires or injuries were experienced. In fact, actual dollar losses from fires declined, especially fires caused by illegal fireworks. However, the noise from explosive fireworks reached such a level that the office was inundated with complaints.

A considerable amount of time was spent on a license revocation and major fireworks seizure from a wholesaler. The resulting legal battle left that issue unresolved throughout the year. Other seizures were limited to oversize firecrackers, sold to the retailers by the aforementioned wholesaler.

Fireworks remained a very controversial issue throughout the year. We expect to see efforts made to change the law during this next year.

RESIDENTIAL INSPECTION DIVISION

The Residential Inspection Division continued to perform high quality fire/life safety inspection services for the Department of Social and Health Services throughout calendar year 1983.

There was a modest increase in the number of inspections, due primarily to the relocation of staff to the eastern part of the state. This brought about increased effectiveness and lessened the workload for the remainder of the inspection staff. Inspection productivity improved because we found fewer major fire/life safety deficiencies in the facilities inspected.

Increased use of telephone consultation with licensees also helped improve our ability to make licensed transient accomodations fire safe. Our increased use of technical information bulletins and revised forms may have made it easier for licensees to know what was required and how to do it.

As of the end of calendar year 1983, the Residential Inspection Division inspection workload included the categories and numbers of state licensed facilities as indicated below.

HEALTH CARE FACILITIES FIRE PROTECTION DIVISION

The Fire Marshal adopts and enforces fire safety standards for health care facilities licensed by the Department of Social and Health Services. We also review and help develop fire safety plans for health care facilities certified under Medicare and Medicaid.

Without annual approval from this office some 900 such facilities would be unable to meet the licensing requirements set forth by the state and the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services.

In addition to the licensing review, deputy State Fire Marshals counsel and advise architects, engineers, contractors and others on a variety of fire protection matters. They also conduct educational and fire and life safety training for people working in the various facilities, and help local fire and building authorities.

Here is a summary of last year's program highlights:

- Several staff members attended work shops and seminars on National Fire Protection Association codes and standards.
- The entire staff attended a workshop for Life Safety Code surveyors relative to federal regulations and required by the Health Care Financing Administration.
- Staff meetings were held to compare and resolve fire inspection problems.
- Emphasis continued on thoroughness and strict enforcement with consistency in application and interpretation of codes and regulations.
- Special inspections were conducted during late evening and early morning hours in facilities to evaluate their readiness to react to a fire emergency when staff capability is reduced.
- An additional Deputy State Fire Marshal was employed and underwent sixty days of intensive training prior to being assigned independent inspection duty. However, this addition is only a hold the line measure and cannot be expected to long compensate for the rapid increase of facilities and large expansions to the existing ones. (A similar problem exists with lack of sufficient clerical personnel.)
- Personnel were continually updated on the state of the art in fire protection.
- New standards for fire protection were adopted. (WAC 212-43 Adult Residential Treatment Facilities and WAC 212-45 Private Adult Treatment Homes.)

- The U. S. Department of Health and Human Services, Health Care Financing Administration, established a Medicare program for ambulatory surgical centers to be administered through the hospital licensing section of the Department of Social and Health Services. The State Fire Marshal was named to conduct the necessary fire life safety inspections. The regulations, process and forms were then developed to conduct the inspections based on federal requirements.
- Two informal appeals regarding corrective orders were conducted before the State Fire Marshal. In both cases the corrective order was upheld. One case has been appealed to a formal hearing.
- December's severe freezing and wind conditions resulted in at least seventeen incidents of sprinkler system pipes freezing and breaking. Some incidents were small and readily repaired while others were more extensive. One nursing home had to vacate four patient rooms and maintain a six week special fire watch while the system was out of service.
- An arson fire caused approximately $15,000 damage at a state institution while the sprinkler system and fire alarm system were both out of service. The building housed 15 retarded residents. At another state institution for the retarded, pipes broke in four major buildings because there wasn't sufficient heat. No injuries resulted from any of the incidents. Improper maintenance of the systems was the leading cause of the failures.
- A select committee appointed to develop retroactive state of the art fire protection regulations for nursing homes is progressing toward creating a set of definitive guidelines.

The Plan Review Section of this division operates via an interagency agreement with the Department of Social and Health Services. It reviews plans for new and remodeled hospitals, nursing homes, boarding homes for the aged, alcoholic treatment facilities, hospice care centers, residential treatment facilities for psychiatrically impaired children and youth, childbirth centers and private establishments. Plans are reviewed for all features of fire protection.

Funding cuts by the Department of Social and Health Services resulted in the elimination of one of the two Deputy State Fire Marshals assigned to this section. The construction inspection function under the same program also has been eliminated.

The deputies assigned to the health care facilities inspections continue to monitor and approve installation of new automatic extinguishing systems, fire alarm and detection systems. All other fire protection features of new construction must wait to be inspected and approved at the next annual inspection of the facility, this due to a lack of staff.

SPECIAL PLAN REVIEW FUNCTION. Under a contract between the State Jail Commission and the State Fire Marshal, the Health Care Facilities Fire Protection Division provides plan reviews and consultation for a series of new county and city jail construction projects.

SUMMARY:

During 1983 over 75,000 Washington Fire Incident Reporting forms were processed. These reports show 23,836 fires causing approximately $65,999,000 in property damage. These fires caused 678 injuries and 40 deaths. 1983 gave us our third full year of WA-FIRS data and showed that we would have to find more efficient ways of processing fire incident reports.

A joint project with the Washington State Association of Fire Chiefs was undertaken to develop a software program that would allow entry of Fire Incident Reports by individual fire departments using their microcomputers. This program was developed so data could be electronically transferred to the state's main frame computer after it had been entered in the individual department's computers.

1983 saw arson classified as a Part I crime under the Uniform Crime Reporting System. Arson, therefore, had finally been recognized by law enforcement officials as a major crime. This will allow for comparison of arson statistics with other major crimes. Most importantly, it is a statement of involvement by law enforcement. Encouraging news to anyone interested in the suppression of arson.

In 1983 there was a lot of activity regarding fireworks and fireworks legislation. Several approaches to the new state law were considered but no formal decisions were made either by the Legislature or by the Fire Marshal. In 1984 we will continue to push for a return to the good parts of Washington's old "safe and sane" fireworks standard.

The Residential Inspection Team (hotels, motels and day care centers) increased the number of those facilities inspected during 1983. This was accomplished primarily by relocating one staff member, the use of telephone consultations with licensees, and an ever-growing number of technical information bulletins and forms sent from the headquarters office to licensees.

The Health Care Facilities Fire Protection Division annually approves over 900 facilities as a condition of licensing by the Department of Social and Health Services and certification by the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services. In addition to interfacing with both state and federal regulations, Deputy State Fire Marshals counsel and advise architects, engineers, contractors and administrative facilities on a wide variety of fire protection matters. They also give assistance to local fire and building authorities.

A growing trend toward new licensing categories was observed in 1983 requiring the creation of two additional fire marshal WACs. WAC 212-43 deals with adult residential treatment facilities and WAC 212-45 deals with private adult treatment homes.

The Plan Review Section continued with one employee. Construction inspections were eliminated due to budgetary considerations. This is not a wise or cost effective thing. If a facility can be constructed properly, further inspection difficulties are significantly reduced.

A special select advisory committee was active in 1983 examining the question of grandfather clauses in medical facilities. Completion of their year long study is expected in 1984.

A major hospital fire, causing $2.5 million in damages, showed the need for review of the grandfather clause as it pertains to medical facilities. Fortunately, no life was lost.

1983 yielded the results predicted in 1982. Fire investigation requests swamped the four person investigative unit. The Fire Incident Reporting System was overwhelmed by its acceptance by the Washington State Fire Service. This left little time for analysis.

Fireworks solutions were merely postponed until the coming legislative session, with an understanding that the State Fire Marshal's Office has never been funded for fireworks enforcement. It must be funded to properly oversee a multi-million dollar industry here.

1983 was the first year of a two-year biennial budget and simply stated, the need for more staff never was more acutely felt.
